Case Against Terminal Monopoly, Prepared by Attorney-General Crow for Supreme Court, Submitted by Him to Secretary of War.

LAW AND PUBLIC POLICY QUOTED AGAINST COMBINE

Federal Government's Right to Seize Merchants' Bridge Is Urged on Grounds of Violation of the Statute Authorizing Its Construction.

Attorney-General Edward C. Crow has submitted the case of the state of Missouri against the St. Louis Terminal monopoly to Secretary of War William H. Taft, with the recommendation that "the Merchants bridge, which is owned and controlled by the Ende Bridge Co., or the Terminal association," be confiscated by the United States government, on the ground that the Merchants' company has violated the terms under which its franchise was granted.

In communication just forwarded to Secretary Taft at Washington the attorney-general sets forth at length the history of the Terminal monopoly and cites facts and conclusions to show that the Federal government, not only as a matter of right, but from the standpoint of public policy, should disrupt the Terminal bridge combine, which has worked to the disadvantage of the trade and commerce of the Mississippi valley.

Some time ago Judge Advocate General Davis of the war department investigated the Terminal combine, but said the national authorities would not take any action until the question had been decided by the Missouri Supreme Court, to which the case was taken on ouster proceedings.

The Missouri court, by a vote of 4 to 2, held that the Terminal association did not fall within the meaning of the state anti-trust law, which prohibits the pooling or consolidation of competitive railroad interests.

State Decision at November Term.

In other words, the court held that the Merchants' Terminal and the Terminal Railroad Association were not railroad companies within the meaning of the law, and their classification as an industry is still undecided, so far as the Missouri tribunal is concerned.

When this opinion was rendered Attorney-General Crow at once filed an amended petition, and the court will pass upon this at the November term.

The war department, exercising supervision over all rivers and harbors throughout the state of Missouri, has jurisdiction over the bridges crossing them.

The charter of the Merchants' Bridge Company, under which the bridge shall be absorbed by the company owning the competing bridge, the charter shall be annulled and the Federal government shall have.

The bridge case, however, does not affect or bear directly upon the Terminal combine, which is a railroad property.

These properties, according to Attorney-General Crow, are being operated in violation of the federal anti-trust law, and it is expected that the government will act favorably with regard to the Merchants' bridge case, action would naturally fall to the railroad companies constituting the combine.

HOW RIVAL BRIDGES WERE COMBINED.

After reviewing the leading conditions upon the construction of the Merchants' Bridge, the terms under which the charter of the corporation was granted, the necessities for an independent bridge across the Mississippi, and the efforts of the shipping interests to secure relief from excessive bridge tolls, Attorney-General Crow swells at length on the Federal features of the case.

Following a resume of the Congressional act which authorized the construction of the Merchants' Bridge, the attorney-general says:

"At the next session of Congress, this section of the original act was amended so as to strike out the provision that the word stockholder wherever it might appear, so that the section, as amended, now reads: 'That whereas, a principal reason for giving authority to build the bridge herein contemplated is to secure reasonable rates and tolls for carrying passengers and freight over the same, the St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Co., or its successors or assigns shall not be entitled to the compensation of his bridge company with other companies across the Mississippi river, or to the pooling of the earnings of this bridge company with any other bridge company on said river, nor shall any person who is or may be a director or manager of either bridge over said river be a director or manager of the bridge herein provided for; Provided, that if this provision of this act shall at any time appear to the satisfaction of the court, such violation shall, without hindrance or delay, be set aside, and that the court, in its discretion, may at any time, in its opinion, grant a stay bridge which becomes a part of the United States, and the secretary of war shall take possession of the same in the name and for the use of the United States.'

"It will be observed that the only difference between the statute now in force with reference to the maintenance of this bridge and the original act and bill which originally authorized its construction is that in the original act it was unnecessary for the court to do this, as the company owning said bridge and at the same time a stockholder in a company owning some other bridge across the Mississippi, Under the amendment, the word stockholder has been eliminated from the act."

How Terminal Gained Control.

"In 1897 the Terminal association came into full possession of certain of the roads which it had previously controlled under the Merchants' company. This was brought by means of an agreement and loan between the two companies. At the same time the Terminal association became the owner of 50 shares of the capital stock of the act."

The only reason given for the secrecy is the statement that the wife's sister had kept her marriage secret, and Mrs. Stock was to do likewise.

Fred Luke, until last Friday a member of the Broadway squad, and who was dismissed from the police force by the police board, was arrested Wednesday afternoon on a warrant charging him with highway robbery.

Luke is accused by John Daniels, who lives at 320 Olive street of having robbed him of $14 a few days ago, at the corner of Newstead and Finney avenues.

Daniels charges that he had trouble at the World's Fair with Luke, who, he says, was dressed in citizen's clothes. He says Luke threatened him and told him that he was a member of the police force. Later in the day, when he left the Fair, he says, he was attacked by Luke and another man.

He says he was severely beaten and was robbed of $1.

Luke furnished $1000, demanded by Judge Moore of the Court of Criminal Correction.

Diplomat, After Visit to St. Petersburg, Says Japan Will Surely Triumph

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—It is impossible to conceive of the corruption in the Russian service under which the Japanese are operating," said a member of the diplomatic corps, who has recently returned from a visit to the Russian capital. "Nothing can save Russia from disastrous defeat," he continued, "save a strong man capable, not of meeting the Japanese in the field, but of mastering the corruptionists at home.

At St. Petersburg all is demoralization. The most distressing discoveries are made almost daily of fraud in the army contracts for supplies. Within a month hundreds of cars have been sent to the front which were laden with food or ammunition on leaving, but on arriving at Balkai were found to contain rubbish, the substitution having been effected somewhere outside of European Russia. Scandals worse than those of the French commissioner in 1859 are in the air.

"What is perhaps worse, the quarrels of officers in the fighting area have become so notorious that the rank and file no longer feel confidence in the judgment of or faith in the leaders.

It is this which accounts for the Russian defeats of late. No soldier, no matter how brave they may be, can fight effectively when they have no faith either in the leaders or in the cause for which they are fighting.

With arms and ammunition below the standard, ill fed and ill clad, it is no wonder that the Russians made so poor a showing.

General Kuroki is a soldier, but he is hampered and handicapped at every turn, both by the bureaucrats in St. Petersburg and the men in the rear who are giving him orders.

LEITER LANDS NONUNION MEN AT HIS MINES

His Agents Were Prepared for Trouble, but the Strikers Made No Attempt to Molest Them and Disobey the Injunction.

UNION MEN CAN NOW GO TO POSTOFFICE WITHOUT GUARD

This Is One of the Reforms That Followed Visit by Another Government Inspector to the Armed Coal Mines.

BY R. N. PEARSON.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DUQUOIN, Ill., Aug. 3.—Without molestation by the striking miners, a carload of men, mostly miners, and all nonunionists, were landed at Ziegler last night.

"We were fully prepared for an emergency," said one agent over the telephone from Ziegler this morning, "but did not meet the slightest interference."

The route taken to reach the mines was a roundabout one, which the Leiter managers refuse to divulge, and the union men in DuQuoin and Christopher were not aware of the presence of the new men when they arose this morning.

Joseph Leiter arrived at Ziegler last night and took active control of the work of starting the mines. United States Marshal Hitch arrived with the papers. All other points on the route were apparently held, and immediately busied themselves with serving the papers and posting copies of the injunctions.

He was unaware of the coming of the men until informed by the Post-Dispatch. All day yesterday William Morris, the strike leader, walked about with his men, but it was not until late that United States Marshal Hitch arrived with the papers. At various points on the route he was apparently held, and immediately busied themselves with serving the papers and posting copies of the injunctions.

Postoffice Inspector Holloway of Chicago visited Ziegler this morning and was greeted by the guards. After disclosing his identity, he was allowed to proceed without the customary guard. As a result of his visit the miners will be allowed to go to the postoffice to buy their accounts paid by a guard, though the company will keep them under close surveillance.

Inspectors have had a full report to the department, supplemental to that of Inspector Means, who was at Ziegler last week.

Another supply of cartridges was sent to Ziegler today, making the total amount sent to here in the past few days close to 20,000 rounds.

BOGUS DOLLARS OF REAL SILVER CAUSE ARREST

Man Arrested by East St. Louis Detective Charged With Passing Counterfeits in Payment for Drinks, Taking Good Money as Change.

LIGHT WEIGHT OF COINS FIRST CAUSE OF SUSPICION

After All-Day Pursuit, Aided Only by Description Furnished by Saloon Men, Officer Captured Man, Who Was Immediately Identified.

Robert Smith, arrested by Detective W. M. Fitts near the latter's home at 639 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, will be held on a charge of passing counterfeit money until the police can communicate with other cities where he is believed to have operated.

James Whelan, proprietor of a saloon at 141 South Main street, East St. Louis, identified Smith Wednesday as the man who entered his place of business Monday night and paid in a counterfeit silver dollar for a cigar and a drink. When Smith was arrested a counterfeit dollar was similar to the one Whelan received was found in his possession. He also carried $23.40 in small change.

Smith's arrest took place after Fitts had spent an entire day searching for the man who passed the counterfeit dollar on Alderman Whelan. Whelan was suspicious of the man, whom he saw when he took it, but after the man who offered it left his saloon he notified the police.

Detectives Fitts and Logan had a fairly good description of the man they wanted when they started on the case Tuesday morning, but they searched all day in vain. Late at night Fitts and Logan were walking near Fitts' home when they saw a man who looked like the one they wanted standing on the corner.

The detectives separated and Logan walked around the block. Fitts followed him a short distance and then, going up behind him, said:

"I want you."

"You have no right to arrest me," the man replied, at the same time pushing the detective away with his hands. Fitts drew his revolver and the man then submitted to arrest.

When taken to the police station he gave his name as Robert Smith and said he was 23 years old. When asked his address he said:

"I live in a box car." Later he said he lived in Ardmore, I. T.

Several saloonkeepers called at the East St. Louis jail Wednesday and after looking at Smith said he was the man who had passed counterfeit dollars on them within the last few days. His method, they say, was to buy a drink and walk out with 90 or 95 cents in change. A man who appeared to be about 20 years of age stood on the sidewalk outside during the time he spent in the saloon.

The counterfeit dollar which Smith had in his possession is a good one and is made of silver. It has the right ring, but is lighter than the genuine coin.

GARFORD HINKLE NOT TAKEN HOME

Pretty Little Castaway, Reclaimed by His Father, Went in Neighbor's Care.

A strange story is that which is heard in East St. Louis neighborhood concerning little Garford Hinkle, the pretty 4-year-old boy found upon the streets of St. Louis last Sunday.

Officer McCormack found the pretty child on Fourth street, near the Eads bridge. Garford was crying, and in one of his sobs he clutched a note saying that anyone who wanted the child could have him, hoping that he would find a good home, and advising that his name was Garford.

In his other hand the little fellow carried a bundle of clean clothes. He was prettily dressed, and was quite the finesse looking when the police had picked up in a long time.

Garford said his name was Garford Hinkle, that he lived "around there," and that his papa had left him on the street, saying he was going for a drink of water.

Garford was cared for by the police matron until Monday, and took him back to East St. Louis. Meanwhile Dr. John C. Davis, an East St. Louis physician who thinks Garford is about the finest little chap he ever saw, has agreed to take care of him. He asked permission to adopt the boy. Also, S. A. Hollingsworth, an East St. Louis attorney, has agreed to take care of him and identified the lad as the son of Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Hinkle, harness and horse dealer at the Eads house.

When the father called for the boy he said Garford had been accidentally lost.

Hinkle told the police that he brought the boy across the river to his home, and that Garford had wandered away from the corner where he was told to return from his father returned from getting a drink.

The father did not explain the note found in the boy's pocket.

All this was intensely interesting to a certain lawyer in East St. Louis.

For a long time the strange case of little Garford Hinkle, whose home has been his father and stepmother and his stepmother's two older children, and who, for some reason, did not gain admission to either of the two homes, has been boarded around in different families since last April.

The little boy's experience was easily known because of his personality. A party who knew little of him, he was known in every household in which he might be in their own households.

Garford's father took him back to East St. Louis, and took him to the lawyer's home. Instead he took the child to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klorh on Penn street, the home of Mr. Hoodspit, a few doors down the street.

For a long time Garford boarded at the home of Mr. Hoodspit, a few doors down the street.

RUSSIAN WAR OFFICE ADMITS DISASTER

Japanese from pursuing, and during the night the Russians withdrew toward Haicheng. The Japanese casualties were about 40.

General Kuroki has telegraphed that, in the two days' fighting at Yangtsze Pass and Yungchow, his losses were six officers killed, sixteen officers wounded and 300 men killed and wounded.

BREACH AT LAST MADE IN PORT ARTHUR DEFENSE WORKS

Special Cable to the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The Standard's Odessa correspondent telegraphs:

"An unofficial report is in circulation that the Japanese have effected an important and irreparable breach in the defense works at Port Arthur. Public opinion is now more or less resigned to the early fall of the fortress."

LAO YANG, Aug. 3.—The Russians attempted to push back a numerically superior force of Japanese from Kuchikita on July 31, resulted in an admitted Russian loss of 1,000 men.

JAPANESE ARE REPORTED REPULSED AFTER 3 DAYS' ASSAULT ON PORT ARTHUR

CHEFOO, Aug. 3.—A desperate three days' assault on the inner defenses on the northern and eastern sides of Port Arthur has failed, according to a dispatch brought by two junks which arrived here today. A Russian, who escaped from Port Arthur by the way of Pigeon Bay on the night of July 29, states the earth trembled under the terrific shock of the battle.

A Chinese correspondent on a small junk confirms the Russian statement that the Russian killed and wounded during the assault numbered between five and six hundred.

The Japanese have repeated their assaults against the eastern forts on the hills, which were held by the Russians and overran, displayed fanatical bravery. They were mowed down by the half of a million shells and bombs which fell among them.

The Japanese, who had held all the eastern forts of the Golden Horn and the Japanese, shattered and exhausted, retired to the eastward.

As the Japanese passengers from the two junks, the Japanese advance, which began from Kwakou before daybreak July 29, directed against the Russian fortifications, was driven back in the meantime, Admiral Maeda, who had been sent to reinforce the Russian, but the return fire of the forts kept his ship at a safe distance, rendering the capture impossible.

On the morning of July 27 the Russian fleet steamed out, keeping under the protection of the Golden Horn guns. The Russian vessels did not fire, but the Japanese soon returned to their anchorage.

The assault on the north side of the city continued until 2 p.m. The Japanese left at Hsiahsien advanced on the Russians at Shihshui Ying, but were repulsed.

The Russian hospitals at Port Arthur are said to be crowded, and many of the wounded are lying in houses and shops of the Chinese, the owners having been evicted, with the exception of one, who acts as caretaker of each place. Medical attention is inadequate.

RUSSIA AGREES NOT TO USE DARDANELLES DURING WAR

LONDON, Aug. 3.—In order to avoid complications which might have the effect of extending the area of war, Russia has made a partial concession to Great Britain in connection with the Dardanelles question.

Referring to British representation regarding closure of the Dardanelles to vessels of the volunteer fleet intended for warlike uses as well as warships, Count Witte, Russian minister to Great Britain, it is learned, has advised Foreign Secretary Lansdowne that his government consented to wait the right to send ships through the straits during the present war, but at the same time Russia makes no concession in relation to its right to take such action as she deems proper when the war with Japan terminates.

In the protest they point to the accident which happened to Charles Wren, a "spider," who was thrown against a wall in "Mysterious Asia" by an angry elephant, and another who was broken and his arm was injured.

The protestants say all Pike visitors are liable to the same dangers if elephants, camels and other animals likely to go on rampage are allowed to large.

The animals are all right, they say, in cages or confined so that visitors may see them at a safe distance.

But it is different when they are allowed to walk through the crowds with nothing to restrain them but the whips of their keepers.

This happened Tuesday night, and Miss Mills was forced to remain with the matron at the station all night because she was not present and she could not get a message to her son for some time.

When the man seized the purse she cried out that she had been robbed, but the thief escaped.

Miss Mills was unable to give a good description of the man.

The police of the Soulard Street Station are looking for two men who are believed to have been implicated in the Illinois Central train robbery near Harvey, Ill. They landed at the foot of Carroll street about 1 o'clock Tuesday evening. Soulard is directed against them because they abandoned their skiff and tried to avoid being seen.

Officials of the Illinois Central Railroad have increased the reward for the arrest and conviction of the robbers from $1000 to $4000. It is expected that the governor of Illinois will also offer a reward. Circulars giving descriptions of the robbers will be sent all over the country.

Oscar Otto, 18 years old, of 121 South Euclid street, and Charles Lorenz, 18 years old, of 113 Lafayette avenue, were sitting on the shore when the men landed. One of the men asked them if they would like to have the skiff. The boys signified that they wouldn't mind and the men turned the boat over to them.

The men left hastily in a northerly direction, threading among the freight cars on the tracks, and lost them until they were lost to view at Miller street.

Sergt. Lyons and three policemen made an investigation and obtained descriptions of the men, who were young, one about 7 inches high, weighed 145 pounds, had dark hair and a smooth face and wore light jeans pants, a dark coat, black shoes, a white shirt and black enameled shoes. The other was 26 years old, 5 feet 10 inches, weighed 145 pounds, was smooth shaven, had a dark coat and pants and a white sailor straw hat.

It was estimated at the Soulard Street Station that the men had bags filled with the proceeds of the robbery which the passengers make no mention of this.

Illinois Central and Chicago detectives and Pinkerton men, sent for by the passengers interviewing passengers who were robbed, getting more detailed descriptions of the robbery and of the jewelry they took, particularly the numbers of the watches of which the passengers were deprived.

TICKET BROKERS HARD HIT.
Two of One Firm Were Arrested the Same Day.

A charge of forgery has been lodged against Max Schubach, member of the firm of Claude & Schubach ticket brokers, of 102 North Broadway. Schubach was arrested by deputy sheriffs and gave bond in the sum of $1000 before Judge McDonald. He is charged by David Hirschberg of Louisville with having sold the name of the Louisville & Henderson agent in Louisville upon a ticket which he sold to a passenger who put the ticket on the train when he attempted to use the ticket. In civil action to recover damages from the railroad company, there was a defense for the agent. Hirschberg's attorney then presented the case to the circuit attorney in St. Louis, with the result that a warrant was issued.

Schubach's brother, Herman Schubach, was yesterday sentenced to 10 days' imprisonment for having sold a ticket, failing to get a ticket after an injunction had been granted restraining him from so doing. The two brothers met at the jail door.

the Merchants' company, and since that time it has acquired control of 13,16 additional shares, the total number of shares being 14,000, so that the Terminal Association owns a sufficient number of shares of stock in the Merchants' company to control its policies in its business policy and affairs. In this connection it might not be out of place to say that under the general mortgage whereby the Terminal Association issued $6,000,000 of 5 per cent gold bonds in 1902, as shown by the record in the office of the recorder of deeds of the city of St. Louis, the amount of the capital stock of the Merchants' company was hypothecated for the purpose of securing in part the payment of said bonds, so that the Terminal Association may show that inasmuch as the Terminal association is the owner of a majority of the stock in the Merchants' company, and the Merchants' company has a perpetual lease upon the Merchants' bridge, that an attempt has been made upon the part of the Terminal Association to violate the provisions contained in the statute, and being possessed of the right of perpetual use and operation of the bridge, the interest of the public is at stake, and the public has wrongfully permitted the Terminal Association to violate the provisions of the statute to the great detriment of the public in a practical sense, merge, consolidate and pool the earnings of the bridges involved.

Benefit to Public
Is Annulled.

"The effect intended by the conduct of the parties interested in such a virtually set up monopoly is to deprive the people of the benefit to be derived by the people by reason of reasonable freight and passenger charge rates. The bridge across the Mississippi river at St. Louis and therefore brings to the people the business passing over the Merchants' bridge in connection with the businesses conducted by means of the Eads bridge.

The conduct of the Terminal Association is not in compliance with the spirit of section 11, above quoted, as to the inhibition set out in this section. That the act prohibits the St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Co. or its successors or assigns from agreeing or consenting to the consolidation of the Merchants' Bridge Co. or its successors or assigns from agreeing or consenting to the consolidation of the Merchants' bridge with any other bridge across the Mississippi river, or to the pooling of the earnings of said bridge with the earnings of any other bridge company on said river.

"The unalterable conclusion that must necessarily follow from the conduct of the companies operating the bridges in connection with said bridges is so joined and interlocked as to defeat the spirit and meaning of the federal statute authorizing the construction and operation of the Merchants' bridge, and the inhibition of the organization of an individual corporation over the two bridges, but where the conduct is so evasive and circuitous as has been pursued in order to accomplish the desired end, it doubtless would have been directly brought about had it not been for the statutory inhibition.

Bridge Earnings
Virtually Pooled.

"The spirit of section 11, above quoted, is to prohibit ownership, control or dominion over the Merchants' bridge by any other company owning or controlling a bridge across the Mississippi river. By the purchase of a majority interest in the company owning a perpetual lease upon the Merchants' bridge, the Terminal association may be able to violate the inhibition of the statute.

"The foregoing is, therefore, most respectfully submitted to you, the senatorial power, will you find the act of Congress authorizing the construction and maintenance of the Merchants' bridge approved Feb. 3, 1887?

"Mr. Crow is confident that the Terminal Association can not be successful in its efforts to sustain its contention that the state of Missouri, if not the United States, can not be violated by the conduct of the Terminal Association, and that the inhibition of the statute is not violated by the conduct of the Terminal Association.

The attorney-general, in concluding, places particular stress on the contract or lease of the bridge with the Merchants' Bridge Co. and the Eads Bridge Co. and says:

"It will be noticed that the St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Co., after the execution of its lease, became the name of the company whereby it was named company was granted the right to operate the bridge in perpetuity.

It has sat for many years now, and the public eye witnessed a rival company in its successful effort to obtain control of the bridge, well knowing the provisions contained in the statute, and being posse possessed of the right of perpetual use and operation of the bridge, the interest of the public is at stake, and the public has wrongfully permitted the Terminal Asso ciation to violate the provisions of the statute.

PASSENGERS SHAKEN UP IN COLLISION

Five Women Injured in Crash Between Trains in the Terminal Yards.

Investigation will be made today to place the responsibility for the collision between a Baltimore & Ohio passenger train and a freight train in the Union Station yards at a late hour Tuesday night. The passenger train which was behind time, was speeding down grade approaching the station, when it crashed into a freight train, which was standing on the main track at Twelfth street.

The engine of the passenger train did not stop, but freight train had run into 100 feet separated the two. Brakes were applied and the engine reversed, but the train was still going at good speed when it struck the other.

Passengers were buried from their seats and into the aisles, but aside from the slight injury, five or six of the women little injury or damage. One of the passengers is believed to be seriously hurt. It was about an hour after the collision before the train could be pulled into Union Station.

Among those who were injured are: Mrs. J. C. May, Paris, Ky., severely; Mrs. M. Paine, Paris, Ky., sprain wrist; Ada Van Winkle, Washington Courthouse, O., neck strained; Miss Rose Paine, Paris, Ky., scalp wound; Mrs. F. B. Moore, Charleston, W. Va., eye and head bruised.

Maddened by its long ride in a crowded stock car from the Southwest plains, the steer, armed with horns six feet across, broke from an unloading chute while being driven from a car at the National stockyards Monday, tossed a man over a high fence, fought for an hour, and into the aisles, but aside from the slight injury, five or six of the women little injury or damage. And so it was that the discussion waxed warm between them, and they actually began to quarrel. The dogs' tempers made ugly faces all because each of them was sure that he was the best beloved, and because they could not convince each other of their respective claims to the affections of their mistress.

Now while all this was going on the mistress' little boy Willie was lying on the floor reading a book and paying no attention to the curios squabble that was going on among the canines in his mother's lap.

"What are you reading?" asked his mother.

"A nice little story I learned at school," replied Willie.

"Well, come up upon my lap and read it to me, my little boy."

HOW TO DECLINE A MARRIAGE PROPOSAL

W. D. HOWELLS, in Harper's Magazine for August.

There was once a young lady of tender years, though from the observation of life feelings but firm resolves who was inflex-rather than her acquaintance with literature, a formula of sympathetic rejection which entirely suited her. We will not reveal because it was so charming that if put in the possession of young girls generally, it would tempt them to it, use the device of every offer of marriage. But we may consider that the young lady, having lived to witness the comparative failure of marriage among her friends, and always liking her friends' husbands better than her friends themselves, though she blamed them for their friends' unhappiness, made such a study of their varying temperaments that she knew just where men's sensibilities would suffer most, and so contrived a form of refusal that would justly flatter their vanity and console their affection, without leaving them grateful for having been rejected.

The only difficulty she experienced was in the application of the formula. It happened that the very first man who offered himself was one whom she had long secretly loved, and she instantly accepted him without, as it were, thinking. She never regretted what she had done, and did not even appear chagrined at the waste of the time she had spent in acquiring the useless information stored up for a contrary eventuality. Unless she should become a widow, her must ever remain the most signal instance of mispent research that we could offer.

Think of the ignorance of the horse after all his long association with man; of the trifling along the street at which he has been brought up; of the ignorance of fear, like endangering his own neck and the neck of his driver. One would think that if he had a particle of sense he would know that an old hat or a bit of paper was harmless. But fear is deeply implanted in his nature; it has saved the lives of his ancestors countless times, and is still one of his ruling passions.

I have known a cow to put her head between two trees in the woods—a kind of stupor—stomach-ache and not to move again. A sufferer can secure a trial bottle free. It will give you quick relief and a permanent cure, and cost you nothing. Write to the Drak Formula Co., Dreis Building, Chicago.

WHAT DO ANIMALS KNOW?

Incredible Stupidity Combined With Keen Ancestral Cleverness.

John Burroughs in the Century.

After the discussion carried on in my two previous articles touching the general subject of animal life and instinct, we are prepared, I think, to ask with more confidence, do animals know?

The animals unite in ignorance with such apparent knowledge, such stupidity with such cleverness, that in our estimate of them we are apt to rate their wisdom either too high or too low. With them knowledge does not fade into ignorance as it does in man; the contrast is like that between night and day, with no twilight between. So keen one moment, so blind the next.

ST. LOUIS, WEDNESDAY,
AUGUST 2, 1901.

these necessarily contain no society column in the true sense.

New Zealand has no submerged teeth, no help problem and no trusts. But there is the weather, and stomach troubles are beginning to come in, so that conversation can be kept up, after a fashion.

Many educated New Zealanders think imperially, but the masses still fancy Aristote a bigger man than Joe Chamberlain and cling superstitiously to the old categories.—Puck.

Tolstoy's "Resurrection."

Dodd, Mead & Co. have just published a new edition of Tolstoy's "Resurrection."

The book has had a remarkably steady influence and sale since it was first published, and this edition is an entirely new translation, and was printed from new plates, with 22 illustrations by Pasternak, the well-known Russian painter. These illustrations are the best we have seen, and represent the most unanimous approval on all sides. Seldom have we seen illustrations which illustrate the text so exactly or catch the spirit of the book so faithfully.

New Zealand.

New Zealand is the interesting country to which economists refer when they wish to prove any old thing.

It is situated a good ways from anywhere.

In New Zealand political corruption is unknown, and yet it is unfair to conclude from this that the people there don't know much.

There are no very rich persons in New Zealand, and while there are newspapers
